Boundless Light

Writing a piece such as this is never easy, yet it often proves to be one of the most meaningful experiences in my life. Eric Lins approached me about composing this piece in memory of his son, Cooper, who had died suddenly at age 7 from a blood infection. A nightmare! Eric mentioned a quote, "grief is just love with no place to go," and he was hoping that a new piece might be one way to share his family's love with others, blessing not only his band, but the entire community and bands everywhere. Before I started writing, Cooper's entire family met with me and also sent me a memory video collage. Upon watching, I immediately dissolved into tears, but the good kind! I got to see firsthand Cooper's boundless energy and zest for life.

Eric also shared "8 Things I Learned From Cooper":

1. Be in the moment
2. Surround yourself with people
3. Do what you love, and share it with others
4. Loan others your strength, and make them feel brave
5. Don't see problems, see possibilities
6. Just have fun
7. Ask lots of questions
8. Say the things that need to be said

I chose to start with a lyrical, thoughtful opening, since we all wanted part of the piece to be beautiful. This opening theme is meant to represent "Say the things that need to be said" (especially, "I Love You"). The Bell part throughout the piece is extremely important, as it represents "Boundless Light."

The second main theme, which is fast and upbeat (M.18), represents Cooper's overall sense of adventure and willingness to "Be in the moment" and "Just have fun." Even the few measures that go into minor momentarily play into that adventurous, exploring spirit. The upper WW ostinato at M.18, which also occurs other places in the piece, is continuing the "Boundless Light" motif that the Bells first introduced.

The 3rd section of the piece (starting at M.63) brings back the opening lyrical theme, but now with a different energy. We are still saying what needs to be said, but in a very encouraging, bold, confident way. This section represents the idea to "Loan others your strength, and make them feel brave." I absolutely love the examples relayed to me of Cooper's willingness to compliment others, celebrate their strengths, and offer encouragement.

And the final section of the piece (starting at M.80) winds back down, bookending how we began, with the final Bell solo reminding us one more time of Cooper's "Boundless Light."
